90,000 Acres of Idle Land in Ulster County, Statement of Stevens

Considers Figures Concerning Reclamation of Non-Productive Land in Ulster County—Has Exhibit at Horticultural Show.

There are between four and five million acres of land lying idle in New York state that could and should be reforested. Every county in the state contributes its share of the land to this total, declares George E. Stevens, supervisor of the Ulster County Department of Conservation, who is featuring a reforesting exhibit at the eastern meeting of the New York State Horticultural Society, Kingston, this week. Ulster county has approximately 90,000 acres of idle land, Mr. Stevens states, while several of the counties adjacent to Ulster county have plenty of idle land. Orange county has 70,000 acres, Greene county 50,000 acres, Delaware county 190,000 acres, Dutchess county 20,000 acres, Sullivan county 80,000 acres and Columbia county 25,000 acres.

Living in Ulster county there is a total of over 277 persons who have planted trees and reforested idle land in this county while there are an additional 30 more persons living in New York city who own estates and land in Ulster county and who are reforesting the idle land.

Since 1909 there has been a total of 2,382,325 trees planted in Ulster county, 1,400,000 of which were planted by the state on state land while over 1,000,000 trees were planted by individuals and community plantings.

The city of Kingston alone has planted over 155,000 trees on its watered while the village of Saugerties has planted over 33,000 trees on its watered. The city of New York has planted over 269,000 trees on its watered in this county. There is also a large list of outstanding private plantings in the county. Last spring saw a total of over 150,000 trees planted in the county.

There are over 18,500 individuals and communities in the state who have planted trees and established forest plantations in the state aggregating the planting of more than 180,000,000 trees since 1909 while the state of New York on its own land has planted over 114,000,000 trees since 1907.

Mr. Stevens further states that trees are furnished by the Conservation Department only for reforesting idle land and are not used for ornamental planting; that the trees are granted free to cities, towns, villages and service organizations for use on public land and are sold at cost of production to private individuals for reforesting privately owned land.

WANTS NEGROES TO EAT IN HOUSE RESTAURANT

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP).—The lone negro member of the House—Representative Oscar De Priest, Illinois Republican—served notice on the Democratic majority today of an attempt to force a floor vote as to whether negroes should be barred from the House restaurant.

"I am going to see" to it that negroes eat there, or we can close it," said the angered De Priest.

Replied Representative Warren, North Carolina Democrat, who heads the committee in charge of the restaurant: "It has never served negro employees or visitors, nor will it so long as I have anything to do with it."

The squabble started yesterday when De Priest's secretary, Morris Lewis, went to the grill room of the restaurant, accompanied by a negro friend, and ordered food at the horseshoe counter.

A negro waiter refused to serve him. First the manager and then Representative Warren were called. De Priest immediately objected and declared later he would force a House vote on a privileged resolution to gain a decision.

"If the Democrats are going to act that way toward the negroes," he said, "we might as well have a showdown now. It seems funny to me that a man with money to pay for his food, whether he be Jew, Gentile or negro should be refused food in a public restaurant."

Warren maintained De Priest was privileged to eat there but contended "if we let one negro employee eat in the restaurant, we'll have to let all of them."

HEALTH OF COUNTRY GOOD—SAYS SURGEON GENERAL

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP).—Take it from Surgeon General Hugh S. Cummings, the general health of the country is "very good," despite isolated epidemics such as that of sleeping sickness at St. Louis.

He told the House appropriations committee in hearings released today. But he said the depression had its effect.

"Preliminary analysis indicates higher sickness rates among the poor, particularly in the case of more serious illnesses that caused inability to work or that confined the patient to bed."

"It also appears that those families who were moderately comfortable in 1929 but had been in poor circumstances for two or three years had more sickness than those who had only recently become unemployed and poor."

Horticultural Society Opens Its Conference At New Armory

J. L. Salisbury, President of Society, Addresses Members—Acting Mayor Heiselman Brings City's Greetings—Dr. Frank B. Seeley Gives Invocation—About 250 Attend Opening Session.

A Proclamation of Welcome

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week Kingston, for the second consecutive year, will have the pleasure of being host to the New York State Horticultural Society. Fruit growers from all parts of New York state will gather here to discuss their common problems. Sessions will be held in the armory on North Manor avenue.

It is most appropriate that the State Horticultural Society should meet in Kingston. We are the center of probably the richest fruit-growing section of the state. We are an ideally situated and equipped convention city, with our fine hotels, shops and points of historic interest.

When our municipal auditorium is completed we will have one of the best convention halls obtainable anywhere. The city administration will, and all other organizations should, strive to induce an increasing number of conventions to come to Kingston.

There is one sure way of selling Kingston as a convention city. And that is by convincing our convention guests that our gates and our hearts are open to them in the true spirit of friendliness and hospitality.

I know that all Kingstonians who have the good fortune to come into contact with our welcome visitors will, by their cordiality and helpfulness, demonstrate that we are a warm-hearted and hospitable people, anxious to be of service to visitors and guests within our gates. Motorists have a splendid chance to be helpful and friendly by offering transportation to delegates seen walking between the armory and the hotel district.

Kingston is proud to receive the members of the State Horticultural Society. We shall do everything possible to make their visit profitable and enjoyable. We shall invite and expect them to return to us next year.

Given under my hand this 24th day of January, 1934.

CONRAD J. HEISELMAN, Mayor.

Final Tribute To John H. McCooey

Brooklyn, N. Y., Jan. 24 (AP).—Democratic leaders of the city, state and nation forgot political rivalries today as they marched together in a final tribute to John H. McCooey, who was the leader of Brooklyn democracy for a quarter of a century.

More than 15,000 persons, police estimated, attended the funeral services today.

They included Governor Herbert H. Lehman and John F. Curry, former Governor Alfred E. Smith and Frederick E. Kelly, United States Senator Royal S. Copeland and Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr. Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City and former Mayor John P. O'Brien of New York. Postmaster General James A. Farley and Bronx Democratic leader, who was Farley's and Flynn's mayoral opponent to McCooey's and Curry's O'Brien, also was there.

Fifteen hundred crowded into Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church, where high requiem Mass was celebrated.

The Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Thomas J. O'Brien. The procession from the McCooey home to the church, a quarter of a mile, included many women's and political clubs.

Mrs. McCooey, dressed in black and heavily veiled, followed the casket into the church.

After the service the body was taken to Holy Cross cemetery for burial.

McCooey died Sunday of heart disease. He had been Democratic leader of Brooklyn for almost a quarter of a century.

Open Federal Mints to Soviet Russian Gold

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP).—Secretary Morgenthau today opened federal mints to Soviet Russian gold.

It was one of three important orders affecting trade with newly reorganized Russia. The other two lifted prohibition against Russian lumber and pulpwood because of Soviet labor production and against Russian matches because of dumping.

The order lifting the ban on lumber and pulpwood produced in certain areas in European Russia left open the right "without prejudice" to the presentation of evidence by any and all parties who may be interested, or to the department's liberty upon its own motion to re-examine the facts by the use of representatives of the government.

It is to be available in Russia.

The New York State Horticultural Society opened its eastern meeting in the New York State Armory on North Manor avenue this morning and was attended by approximately 250 people. It will continue here through Friday afternoon.

The business sessions, with addresses by leading fruit growers and agriculturists from various parts of the country, are being held in the spacious ballroom. The drill shed has been given over to exhibits of fruit, educational displays and commercial products of special interest to fruit growers and farmers.

The work of the New York State Horticultural Society is really a continuation of that of the Western New York Horticultural Society, organized in 1855, having been formed by a combination of that society and the New York State Fruit Growers Association about 25 years ago. It has a membership widely distributed among many states in the Union and even in some foreign countries.

When the society was organized it was provided that the annual meetings should be held in Rochester, as the larger portion of the membership came from the western part of the state and the meeting this year was held in that city January 10-12. The meeting in Kingston is more or less a continuation of that meeting and is known as the eastern meeting of the society.

The eastern meeting was made necessary by the rapid growth of the fruit industry in the eastern section of the state. Until last year these eastern meetings had been held in Poughkeepsie, but demands for more space to accommodate the large attendance and exhibits made it necessary to seek more ample quarters and the meeting in 1933 was held in the old armory here. "It was voted a great success in every way and officers of the society and members and exhibitors professed themselves highly pleased with the accommodations offered and with the exceptional advantages Kingston provides in the matter of first-class hotel facilities. Comments heard on every side left little doubt but that the society would return to Kingston for its 1934 meeting."

The exhibits being shown in the big drill shed are open to the general public and are free. For the benefit of those who may be unable to visit this really worthwhile show during the day the exhibition will be kept open this evening Thursday night the annual banquet of the society will be held at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

$284,747,000 Naval Bill Passed by House And Sent to the Senate

Bill Will Bring Navy Up to Treaty Limits But Does Not Provide for Replacement of Ships Soon to be Past Useful Age.

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP).—The appropriation bill carrying $284,747,000 for the navy's next fiscal year was passed today by the house and sent to the senate.

Although the measure appropriates $55,619,551 for ship construction, it does not provide for the replacement of ships which now are or will be over useful age when the London treaty expires December 31, 1936.

There was no roll call vote on passage of the bill.

Earlier, the House Naval Committee had abandoned plans to seek enactment of the Vinson bill as an amendment to the regular supply bill for the navy department, the Vinson bill would provide for a construction program to bring the navy to treaty limits.

Chairman Vinson told the House he will ask the rules committee to give legislative right-of-way to his bill, which is approved by the administration, so that it soon may be brought up for passage.

He made that statement just before the House approved a section of the pending appropriation bill allowing $35,619,000 for construction necessary to bring the fleet toward treaty strength.

This section would permit construction to begin in the next fiscal year—after July 1—on one 10,000-ton 8-inch gun and three 10,000-ton 6-inch gun cruisers. It would not, however, permit replacement of the 101 other vessels which will be over the age considered satisfactory when the London treaty expires on December 31, 1936.

The Vinson bill would authorize those replacements, which the navy estimates would cost about $76,000,000 a year for five years, enabling the fleet to be up to treaty strength in modern ships by 1940 or 1941.

PICTURE U. S. FIGHTING FLEET ON BUSINESS BASIS

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP).—High navy officials today pictured an American fighting fleet placed "on a business basis," as a result of what they termed "a sincere response by Congress" to the Vinson bigger navy bill.

Chairman Vinson of the House naval committee let it be known he would move today to attach his measure as a rider onto the navy's $284,000,000 annual appropriations bill.

The bill if approved would carry the navy to full treaty strength by 1939. The President would be authorized to lay down the necessary number of vessels with other appropriations to be made by Congress in the future.

Navy chiefs named the ships specifically authorized as one aircraft carrier of 15,000 tons, 99,000 tons of destroyers and 35,000 tons of submarines in addition to 33,000 tons of six-inch gun cruisers, one 10,000-ton heavy cruiser—all these in addition to the vessels now being built under recovery act funds and regular appropriations.

Approximately 20 ships could be laid down in the first year under the Vinson program. These would probably be divided between 14 destroyers and six submarines. The whole program under the measure would call for appropriation of some $280,000,000 or $400,000,000 annually.

Admiral William H. Standley, chief of Naval operations, asserted that not only would the measure place the navy "on a business basis," but after establishing the fleet at full treaty strength would "keep it there."

DR. C. E. LADD WILL ADDRESS KIWANIS CLUB

Dr. Carl E. Ladd, dean of the College of Agriculture at Ithaca, is to be the speaker at the noon luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club, to be held at the Governor Clinton Thursday. Dr. Ladd will make an address at the meeting of the New York State Horticultural Society, Thursday afternoon at 2, at which time he will discuss "Some Agricultural Problems in New York State."

Second Victim of Shooting

Amsterdam, N. Y., Jan. 24 (AP).—Mrs. Catherine Kruger, 41, died in a hospital today, the second victim of a shooting on January 8. Stephen Benosky, who police said shot Mrs. Kruger in the act of anger, shot himself twice near the heart and lived 24 hours.

HOPEFUL TRAYLOR WAS PASSED CRISIS

Chicago, Jan. 24 (AP).—After Melvin A. Traylor, 55, president of the First National bank, had fallen into a sound sleep early today physicians attending him at his home where he is critically ill with pneumonia, said they were hopeful that he had passed the crisis.

The announcement was made after they had kept an all night vigil with members of the banker's family at his bedside after a sudden turn for the worse late last night.

Sum Of $820,693,270 Is Recommended For Running Of Treasury

And Post Office Departments During Next Fiscal Year—Represents a $103,623,327 Decrease From Current Allotment.

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP).—The House appropriations committee today recommended $820,693,270 for operating the treasury and post office departments during the next fiscal year, representing $103,623,327 decrease from the current allotment and a $6,875,000 cut in the budget estimate.

The report, submitted to the house, also showed an increase in annual public debt service requirements of $155,129,629 in view of the increase of the public debt to $27,571,000,000 as of November 20, 1933.

This brought the total annual debt service requirements to $1,359,087,520, including $525,738,850 for the sinking fund and $833,348,669 for interest.

The treasury was allotted $149,842,330 for the fiscal year beginning July 1 and the post office department $670,850,940.

While the public debt and other permanent annual and indefinite appropriations amounting to $1,363,434,000 are reported in the supply bill, the money is withdrawn for payments automatically and congress does not pass on them.

In reporting the bill, Chairman Arnold (D-Ill.) of the sub-committee in charge, said the group was "not inclined to make any increase in the present rate of expenditure until all investigations and studies of air mail contracts and practices have been completed."

The post office as well as senate committee, he said, is inquiring into the air and ocean mail subsidy contracts. However, the report said:

"Air mail service should be provided where it is justified, the contractors should be fairly compensated and the interests of the government should be amply protected."

SEES INCREASE IN ORGANIZED SMUGGLING

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP).—Asserting that no country has ever "succeeded in repelling organized smuggling simultaneously with prohibition," Admiral Harry G. Hamlet, commandant of the coast guard, foresees an increase in liquor smuggling.

In a statement before the appropriations committee, which today submitted to the House a bill allocating money to the coast guard next year, he said before prohibition there was no organized liquor smuggling because there was no incentive and "they did not have the enormous plants for effecting it; they did not have the radio stations, trucks, legal talent and the set-up necessary to evade the law."

"They have such now," he continued, "that having been built up during the existence of the Eighteenth Amendment; and it is that organization which we feel sure is not going to drop out for patriotic considerations."

Secretary Morgenthau disclosed before the same committee that he does not want the coast guard to be transferred to the navy, despite considerable talk around the White House about it.

"Merely as a 'horseback' opinion, I will say that I would rather see the coast guard stay in the treasury," he said. "It is a police job in a sense, and I think that the coast guard can do that better than the navy can. It is for the protection of the revenue."

STREETS OF PARIS TODAY RESEMBLED BATTLE FIELD

Paris, Jan. 24 (AP).—Streets of Paris resembled a battle field at sunrise today, strewn with the debris from several sharp clashes between the police and Royalist and Communist demonstrators.

Street fighting in the vicinity of the Chamber of Deputies continued far into the night while the chamber endorsed Premier Camille Chautemps' protests against a campaign of mudslinging in the Stavisky bank scandal.

Five thousand Communists fought the police of the Boulevard Montparnasse and eight manifestants were taken to hospitals.

Royalist elements laid waste streets in the aristocratic Faubourg St. Germaine district and extended their operations to the Latin quarters.

On the Boulevard St. Michael rioters demolished news and florists stands, drenched them with gasoline and set them afire.

RECOMMEND PARDON FOR FOUR AMERICANS

Madrid, Jan. 24 (AP).—The attorney general of Spain recommended to the supreme court today a pardon for four Americans held in jail at Palma, Mallorca, for assaulting a civil guard.

The four Americans are Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Lockwood of West Springfield, Mass.; Roger F. Wood of New York and Edmund A. Rodgett of Stamford, Conn.

They have been held in custody at Palma since last Sunday when they were arrested following a supreme court reversal of a military tribunal verdict. The military court had acquitted them of the charge.

The supreme court found them guilty and sentenced them to six months and a day in jail.

President Willing To Accept Time Limitation On His Program

Urges Rejection of Proposal To Have a Board Administer Huge Stabilization Fund—Final Vote on Monetary Bill By End of The Week Was the Democratic Goal—Extremely Inflationary Measure, Says Glass.

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP).—President Roosevelt's word to Congressional leaders today that he was willing to accept a time limitation on his monetary legislation, urged rejection of the proposal to have a board administer the huge stabilization fund.

The chief executive's decision became known on Capitol Hill as the Senate began consideration of the money bill.

The President's views were passed along to Congressional leaders after a conference at the White House with Senator Robinson, Democratic leader.

Robinson would not discuss his visit, but on leaving the White House said the board plan was "obnoxious and impractical."

Administration leaders said they would insist upon the original terms of the bill, providing the secretary of treasury with sole jurisdiction over the fund, contending that it can only be handled by a single power, and that a board would endanger what was called the fundamental necessity for secrecy.

A final vote on the bill by the end of the week was the Democratic goal.

One cloud on the horizon for the administration leaders was the demand from the silver bloc for legislation to aid the white metal.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) announced today in the terms of the amendment he will offer to the bill for the purchase of silver. He said it would call for buying the metal until silver reaches the approximate ratio of 16 to 1 with gold. No more than one billion ounces could be bought.

Wheeler contended the plan would cost the government nothing because it would issue silver certificates to offset the cost.

"The government won't have to buy more than 200,000,000 or 250,000,000 ounces to establish that ratio," Wheeler said.

Inflationary, Says Glass.

Senator Borah asked Senator Glass today if he regarded the monetary bill as "inflationary."

"In a large sense, an extremely inflationary measure," Glass replied in the Senate.

He referred to a statement during the committee hearings by Professor James H. Rogers, President Roosevelt's advisor, that the bill would permit inflation of credit by $17,500,000.

Glass added that "Owen D. Young" figured out that under the bill the secretary of treasury alone might inflate the currency between $20,000,000 and $40,000,000.

Senator Barkley said Glass had misquoted Young, and that the New York financier had said the bill would provide an expansion of reserve credit which was "quite different from expansion of the currency."

"There is no material difference between inflation of credit and inflation of currency," Glass shot back.

AIRPLANE TO REPLACE MEN AND HOUSES IN PLANTING FISH

New York, N. Y., Jan. 24 (AP).—An airplane will replace horses and men in the planting of fish in remote streams and lakes in New York state this summer. State Conservation Commissioner Lithgow Osborne told delegates to the 20th American game conference in an address prepared for delivery today.

The plane, purchased by the department two years ago, has been used principally for scouting in forest fire prevention and control work and locating illegal nets in lakes.

Commissioner Osborne also announced that compartment oxygen tanks are to be used in motor truck distribution to lakes and streams that are readily accessible to these vehicles.

"These tanks, used for the first time last year as an experiment, keep the fish in better condition for longer journeys," he pointed out, and their use should make possible the abandonment of some of the steeper and more remote rearing stations. This would centralize the work at the larger hatcheries.

He expressed the hope that the economies expected to follow from the use of the oxygen tanks will eventually permit the department to do all the fish planting each year, thus relieving clubs and volunteers of this work.

TREASURY RECEIPTS

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP).—The position of the treasury January 22 was: Receipts $6,579,422.91; expenditures $5,550,307.49; balance $1,029,115.42.

They have been held in custody at Palma since last Sunday when they were arrested following a supreme court reversal of a military tribunal verdict. The military court had acquitted them of the charge.

The supreme court found them guilty and sentenced them to six months and a day in jail.

Miss Eunice Norton, pianist, who is to be the third artist on the series of the Kingston Community Concert Association this season has been such a success in her appearances on the Pacific coast that her managers have been persuaded to extend her tour there to fill several extra engagements.

Due to this the association has postponed the date for her appearance from February 13 to one later in the season. They will endeavor to make it as late as possible to be assured of finer weather but a definite date cannot be given at this time.

The concert has been definitely cancelled, no other artist appearing and the new date will be announced as soon as possible.

Quiet in Finland
Finland is believed to be the only country that has abolished all unnecessary street noises. The law has silenced motor horns, street car bells, traffic whistles, hand organs and cries of hucksters, newsboys and sidewalk orators; and a Sabbatharian prevails everywhere, even in the heart of Helsinki.—Collier's Weekly.

BIG CHANGES MADE ON FACE OF EARTH

1933 Sees Great Engineering Projects Under Way.

Washington.—Outstanding changes brought about on the face of the earth during 1933 by dynamite, steam shovels, picks and spades, riveting "guns" and concrete mixers are summarized in a bulletin from the National Geographic Society dealing with the engineering accomplishments of the year. Owing to the pushing forward of public works in the United States and a number of other countries, in an effort to combat the economic depression, and to threats of war in other regions, the bulletin points out, more than the normal number of construction projects were under way in all parts of the world.

"Engineering activity was especially marked in highway construction," says the bulletin. "In the United States work progressed in all the states on more than 5,000 separate road-building projects financed with public works administration funds. For the most part, these projects represented relatively short stretches of road supplementing and improving existing highways."

"Two scenic highways of more than local interest were completed or brought close to completion: 'Going-to-the-Sun' highway in Glacier National park, and the 'Skyline Drive' along the crest of a section of the Blue Ridge mountains in Virginia."

Railways Shrink in U. S.
"While net railway mileage increased in 1933 on several continents, especially Asia, a much greater mileage was again abandoned in the United States than was built. Less than 50 miles of new track was laid in Uncle Sam's domains during the year, while more than 2,400 miles was abandoned."

"Railways were extended in Chile, Brazil, Peru, Uruguay, Argentina, and Colombia; in Spain and Italy; in French Morocco, Central, South, and East Africa; in Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, the Soviet Union, Poland, and Turkey; in China; and in Australia."

"One of the most important railway projects undertaken during 1933 was the double-tracking of the Trans-Siberian railroad."

"Greatest railway activity centered during the year in Manchuria and Korea, to central Manchuria."

"Famous Aswan dam across the Nile, 450 miles south of Cairo, had its second heightening job completed during the year. It will now impound more than five billion tons of water."

"The 20-mile dam across the Zuider Zee in the Netherlands, the last gap in which was closed in 1932, took final shape during 1933, and in September its top was officially opened to rail and highway traffic."

"After nearly three years of excavation and preparation of the Boulder dam site on the Colorado river, the first concrete was poured June 8. Two years will be required to pour the 5,500,000 barrels of concrete that will go into the structure."

"By means of a four-mile highway bridge, opened April 25, Venice became more closely connected with the mainland, and for the first time automobiles were driven to the edge of the island city."

"A new bridge across the Hudson at Albany was dedicated in January."

"Work was started on the two huge bridges in San Francisco which are to span San Francisco bay and the Golden Gate."

150-Mile Canal in Russia.
"The Soviet Union completed the most important artificial waterway of the year—the Baltic-White Sea canal extending for approximately 150 miles from Porevitz, on Lake Onega, to Soroka, on the White sea. It has 12 locks and 15 dams."

"At home, large service between New Orleans and Chicago, was formally inaugurated during the summer on the Lakes-to-Gulf waterway."

"Nineteen-thirty-three saw a considerable addition to the world's tunnels. In Japan the five-mile Tanna railway tunnel was completed after 16 years of work. In Chile, completion of the three-mile Las Raices tunnel gives a direct rail connection between southern Chile and southern Argentina. Spain completed a two-and-a-half-mile tunnel between Burgos and Madrid. In Africa, 'holling through' of the Mount Bomba tunnel removed the greatest rail-travel obstacle between Brazzaville, French Equatorial Africa, and the Atlantic."

"Subways were extended in three of the great cities of the world: New York, London, and Paris; and opened for the first time in Osaka, Japan. One New York extension involved the boring of twin tubes under East river. Work progressed rapidly during 1933 on the new subway system for Moscow."

Good Samaritan Must Pay $3,000 to Injured Girl

Merced, Calif.—A Merced county constable's errand of mercy following an unusual accident recently resulted in a $3,000 damage judgment against him.

The constable, Lewis Hulen, of Los Banos, Calif., rushed Elsie Rocha of Los Banos to a hospital here after she had been struck on the head by a wildly thrown rolling pin during a farm picnic contest.

En route his automobile and two others collided and the injured girl was hurt additionally. She sued Hulen and won a judgment.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JAN. 24, 1934.

A TEMPEST IN A TEACUP

There has been a growing tendency upon the part of public officials to attempt to regulate the salaries of officers of concerns falling within the classification of public service corporations. Final decision will be made in the courts. A review of the situation is interesting, inasmuch as the motive behind the movement is to lower costs to consumers.

One of the large electric and gas properties of the Pacific Northwest was recently ordered by the state public service commission to cut executive salaries in all departments a total of about $50,000 a year. A survey of the company's operating costs produces the fact that if all administrative salaries were eliminated 100 per cent (not just a cut in salaries), operating expense in the case of one of its properties would be reduced by 1.8 per cent; by 2.3 per cent in the case of the second, and by 1.9 per cent in the case of the third. In the highest instance it would amount to 1.3 per cent of gross revenue. Thus, if a customer had been paying $3.85 a month for electricity, and the company's set-up was changed so as to pay nothing at all to executives, his bill would be reduced by the colossal sum of five cents!

In contrast to this, the percentage of company operating expense going for taxes, was about 23 per cent in all cases. For comparative purposes, a 1.5 per cent cut in the total tax bill would save the ratepayer as much as a 20 per cent cut in all administrative salaries.

The people should know these facts. Public service corporations usually pay reasonable salaries to their officers—men whose responsibilities embrace property worth millions and who are charged with maintaining and improving it in the interest of the community, the consumer, the worker, the investor and the state—men who in most cases have worked up from the ranks by ability alone. The ratepayer gets the best in executive ability for a minute proportion of the bill he pays.

DUCK HUMOR

A popular radio artist, whose chief stock in trade is the persistent inquiry whether anybody wants to buy a duck, admits that he hasn't any duck and never had. His gag-line is described as the result of accident and evolution. In burlesque he used to ask people, at random, whether they wanted to buy a horse or a hippopotamus or whatever else he happened to think of. He always got a laugh. But one day when he happened to make it a duck, he got a bigger laugh than ever before. So he has kept it up. He says he doesn't know why a duck should be funny. But it must be, he says, because people laugh at it.

Closely related to this duck mystery is the great Elmer mystery. Nobody knows why the question "Where's Elmer?" should always raise a laugh, and why in particular it should be so funny when used by members of the American Legion. There have been labored explanations, but none of them explain satisfactorily. Maybe a duck is humorous because it has a sense of humor, but we doubt it. And if you say a duck is humorous because it has no sense of humor, then it's humorous because it isn't humorous. We get into similar difficulties with the Elmer problem. What is humor, anyhow? It seems to be one of those things everybody thinks he understands and nobody can make anybody else understand.

GALL STONES COMMON

If every individual who had stones in his gall bladder suffered from gall stone colic, every doctor in the country would have a busy time easing the pain with pain killing drugs, and surgeons would spend most of their time removing stones from the gall bladder or removing the gall bladder itself.

However, as in the majority of cases, the stones remain quietly in the gall bladder, it is only the occasional case that suffers from gall stone colic, or has to undergo operation. The pain in gall stone colic is caused by one of the gall stones leaving the gall bladder and getting caught or stuck in the tube carrying the bile down to the small intestine. The stone is grasped by the tube, and a severe cramplike pain results. It is so severe that hypodermic injections of morphine is the usual treatment.

The morphine relaxes the tube and eases the pain allowing the stone. In most cases, to pass downward. But why should gall stones form and is there nothing that can be taken to dissolve them once they are formed?

Further, what happens when the gall bladder is removed, and why has man got a gall bladder? Just why gall stones form in some individuals and not in others is just as hard to answer as why some individuals are afflicted with hay fever and others are not. It is thought however that gall stones form in individuals who eat too much food, particularly fats. There is not as far as medical science knows at present, any medicine or other substance that will dissolve gall stones once they are formed.

When the gall bladder is removed the bile flows directly from the liver to the small intestine, the gall bladder being only a sort of reserve tank full of bile in a concentrated form. It is possible that as early man ate only when he found food, a quantity of bile was stored up in his gall bladder between times so that sufficient would be ready when next he ate.

The points to remember then are that gall stones are very common; that they do no harm in most cases; that gall stone colic is due to the passage of a stone down through the tube leading from the gall bladder; that nothing will dissolve gall stones; and that gall stones can be prevented by not eating too much at one time, particularly fatty foods.

BLOND GODDESS

A New Social
 by Markert Jensen

Although Frank had been told that the blonde goddess was a myth, he was not prepared to believe it. He had seen her in the papers, and he had heard her name mentioned in the papers. He had seen her in the papers, and he had heard her name mentioned in the papers. He had seen her in the papers, and he had heard her name mentioned in the papers.

Chapter 14
FRANK'S CALL

"When Paula, my maid, said that she had phoned and asked if I were home, you construed that to mean that Ortega wanted to be sure that I was available for abduction—but I don't think so. Perhaps he just wanted to call to say good-bye; but changed his mind."

"When those two men came in, he wasn't with them. They—" She repressed an involuntary shudder. "They held me so I couldn't scream. One of them gave me a hypodermic. Another man—I never did see his face—was outside. I was conscious that he was there when they put me in the car."

"Did he have a beakish nose?" asked Frank.

Janice shook her head. "I don't remember." Greene made a little sound. He breathed:

"What a story! What a story! I've got most of it here." He held up a sheet of paper. "When I break this what a—"

"Giff them here," said Myberg, looking coldly at Greene with his obsidian eyes.

Greene passed them over. Myberg grasped them with his pudgy hands and ripped the sheet across. He dropped the torn paper into a waste-paper basket. Greene made a small, strangled sound. Winslow chuckled.

"Greene," he observed, "considers that vandalism. He is an artist."

"So was Munchausen," granted Myberg. "But the newspapers get nothing of this. The public wouldn't believe it. They would laugh at it for a lie. I don't mind if they laugh at you, Greene, but Miss Kent is no joke."

Greene looked miserable. Frank said mildly, "Don't take it so hard, old man. You'll get other chances. You're a good publicity man. Miss Kent told me so herself. She couldn't do without you, really."

At Janice's nod, Greene looked pleased and important.

"I work hard," he said. "In fact, I go to considerable time and expense to develop these stories. I—"

Janice interrupted him with a swift look. "He gets a perfectly stupendous salary for developing these stories, and I couldn't do without him, really. That is, he would be most difficult to replace. Wouldn't you, Mr. Greene?" She smiled at him engagingly.

At the fleeting expression of discontent that arrived and vanished on Greene's face, Winslow laughed aloud.

Myberg drummed his knuckles impatiently on the desk.

"There is nothing to do now except to get on production. We will not try to find out any more ways and whereabouts. With the police in it, the newspaper fellers would come out with stories. I will get some men from an agency to watch out for Janice. That . . . is all."

THE discussion had been concluded early in the afternoon. Janice had gone home and rested. She had eaten a light dinner, and thought once in a little flurry of agitation that she might run over to a friend's house, and not be at home—actually—when Frank Graham called.

But this device, she realized, would be useless. Sooner or later she must talk with Frank. She suspected also that it would be a little cowardly. She'd see him tonight, since he wanted it. . . . Her compressed lips relaxed. What would she tell him?

It was nine-fifteen when she entered the drawing room on the lower floor. Frank stood before the log fire that burned cheerily in the grate. His wide shoulders bulged against the glow. He held a newspaper clenched in his hands; he seemed to be hypnotized by the crackling logs, so intense was his concentration.

She spoke his name twice before he seemed to hear her. He turned the fixed, absent stare of the thinker upon her. It was apparently an effort for him to bring his thoughts back to this room.

"Janice, have you read the evening papers?"

"No. I—What is it, Frank? Is it something about last night? . . . Tell me—"

He shook his head impatiently. "It's about Bill Langdon. The dead one. My friend. But perhaps he

STROKES OF GENIUS

by SAMUEL JOHNSON
 & ALFRED PARKER

"PAULINE BONAPARTE" was Antonio Canova's favorite statue. Carved in 1805, it has since reposed in the Palazzo Borghese in Rome, the ancestral home of Pauline Bonaparte's second husband. Pauline was Napoleon's younger sister and the gayest and most beautiful member of the family. At 17, she married one of Napoleon's staff officers and later, a Roman prince. Although she was banished from the French court because of her scandalous intrigues, she went to Elba with Napoleon in 1814, and wished to share his exile at St.

Helena. In this statue Canova portrays her as the goddess Venus reclining on a couch.

The Italian sculptor, Canova, was left an orphan at the age of 3. He was raised by his grandfather who taught him to draw as soon as he was old enough to hold a pencil. Seeing Canova model a small lion in butter, an Italian senator became his patron.

Probably the most famous sculptor of modern times, Canova rejected many flattering offers from foreign courts, insisting that his work belonged to Italy, his native land.

TOMORROW: THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE, NEW YORK

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—However commanding the administration's advantage may have appeared as Congress's initial opening flurry passed—buckled into business, ahead lay something that might produce a snarl.

Steering committees at both ends of the capital had placed just behind the special liquor tax measures the plan to grant the White House authority to work out new export markets for farm stuffs by "honest" negotiations as to tariffs and related matters with other countries.

That was done on the heels of Mr. Roosevelt's pre-session conference with party congressional leaders, indicating that he rated the framing of new bi-lateral trade agreements as the urgent next step in his agricultural program.

An Irritating Word

TARIFF is always a fighting word to congress. If anybody had suggested throwing the question of tariff rates into this session of Congress for revision, perhaps Speaker Rainey and Senate Leader Robinson would never have committed themselves to predictions that the Congress could quit between the middle of April and June 1.

Rates are not directly involved now in the administration's tariff plans. That may ease the situation. Nobody knows better than Rainey what happens when rate revisions are undertaken. He has had a hand in the making of every tariff bill in the last two decades or more.

The question is whether the mere proposal to grant the President power of negotiation which would involve rates will not stir up a hornet's nest of protest among those who fear their own domestic markets might be hit.

Making Haste Slowly

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S efforts to speed Congress to an early adjournment apparently will have little effect on the Senate and its additionally leisurely way of doing business.

The Senate was in session probably less than two hours during the week in which Congress assembled. After a short session on Thursday, lasting one hour and 15 minutes, senators closed up shop for the week.

The House drove on through with the liquor tax bill, completing consideration of it before adjourning.

The White House set Manuel Quezon and his associates of the new Philippine independence commission a tough task. They were asked to draft a bill in a matter of days setting out their ideas of the subject in opposition to the Harcourt-Hawes plan they oppose and which it took years of congressional travail to produce.

HIGH FALLS

High Falls, Jan. 24.—Mrs. Julia Steen, Mrs. John Ham, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Barrett and Mrs. Stanley Steen spent Tuesday of last week with Mrs. E. D. Kortright and daughter, Mrs. Grant Young.

Mrs. George Hoffman, who has been ill, all are glad to report, is better.

Miss Esther Wheeler was a caller at Locust Hurst cottage Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Peter Smith spent one day the past week taking care of her brother, Charles, who had tonsillitis. Her mother is now employed at the home of Mrs. C. Dupuy.

FASHIONS By ELEANOR GUNN

Cardurey for Indoor Sports, Too

Copyright, 1934, by Fairchild.

Two versions of the fine wale cord wry lounging pajama, that at the left in brown and orange with puff sleeves banded in nile, maduro and melon color, and the other with blue bird coat and commodore blue trousers being trimmed in nile and melon handings. The convertible collar is illustrated in the small sketch.

Rumors Coloring the Mode

Talk of colors for spring divides itself. There are those who believe in bright light colors, and those who believe in soft "dirty" pastels; a good many believe in both.

In the pastel range are chiefly mentioned baby pink influenced by gray or grege, and bols de rose inclining toward ashes of roses; blue in pearly tone.

In the brighter range are Chinese and geranium reds, similar respectively to manchu and sun-red; a tango shade like Indian orange; and a corn yellow with less green in it than the Corngold.

Of basic colors, everyone agrees on another season for navy, both dark and light; and look for the big success of string color, grege and other naturals.

Silk Gains on Wool

New York.—Can it really be that the woolen dress is losing its hold on the fickle affections of women? It is not only that spring comes on apace that may be held responsible for the dearth of woolen dresses about, since everyone must recall that we have been summerizing in wool recently and saying we liked it.

The shop play safe by showing dresses in the wool with satin or some other fabric touch. There are a number of good looking woolens that are threaded or in some way trimmed with gold. We like our fashions gilded even for daytime, that is if the gilding is not of the gingerbread type and if it is well done. Lame dresses, in black and gold which gives a coppery effect, are worn at high noon as well as night and it is considered bad form to wear metal cloth at neckline, sleeves or both.

The type of dress sketched appeals to the girl who has every wish to be well dressed and none at all to be all dressed up. The dress that may be worn from eight to eight is the ideal of every business woman and all commuters. Such dresses are easier to find than they used to be, although one must be careful about the length of the skirt. Long skirts look very out of place excepting in formal places and short ones look very queer at night. It's cheering news, however, that the instep and ankle length dress is seen more frequently at night, even the opera being no exception.

If you are the sort who sinks or swims in or by black satin believing that it is always in good taste, you must be encouraged by the number of women who think as you do. Black satins are replacing black velvets and look very smart when severely plain. The obliging habit of slashing the sleeve, so that the arm is seen from armpit to elbow, makes a hit with the type of girl who must make her day clothes look sufficiently gala for dinner.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Shorts, those extremely abbreviated panties that have continued in popular demand since last spring, are again highlighted in new collection of under-garments.

NEW CEREAL IS BOON TO CONSTIPATION SUFFERERS

And now science offers sufferers from constipation a better way to health—by combining two of Nature's most important foods in a delicious new cereal.

Yeasties is the result of years of careful laboratory experiment and research. It is a delicious blending of active yeast with toasted whole wheat flakes. It retains all the bran and all the health giving properties of the whole wheat. Yeasties is so full of active vitamins that each flake might truly be called a Yeast flake—yet it tastes more like popcorn or toasted nuts.

Clever mothers who know how important it is that the family should be kept regular are finding new help in Yeasties. Bad temper, troubles in the home, children who don't pass their grades—a hundred and one frictions in every day life have their start in that most common of modern ailments, constipation. Wise mothers give the whole family Yeasties regularly for breakfast or supper.

And Yeasties will save you money, too. For only 17¢ you get a large package containing 10 generous servings of Yeasties—each equal to 10 servings of toasted wheat flakes plus 10 portions of active yeast. Bought separately these would cost you at least 43¢. By buying them blended together in Yeasties you save 26¢.

Ask your grocer for a package of Yeasties right away. Start giving it to your whole family regularly. See how they welcome its delicious flavor and see how much healthier it makes them.

Tried To End Life

In A Police Cell

Poughkeepsie, Jan. 24.—A negro bootblack, George Simpson, 32, of 23 Garden street, attempted suicide in his cell in the city jail early last night after his arrest with two others on second degree rape charges.

Investigation of the case, police said, is leading them into one of the most sordid moral situations that has come to the attention of the department in years.

Arrested with Simpson were Peter Pampas, 28, known also as Trampas, who lives in the Strand building; and Jerry Ballas, 32, cook, who lives at 283 Mill street. All will be arraigned in city court today.

Police charged they were involved with a 13 year old pupil in the S. F. B. Morse school and that they have corroborated in the form of a statement from another 13-year-old girl who witnessed many of the acts alleged in the complaints.

Simpson questioned since 11:30 yesterday morning, tied a sweater about his neck and tried to strangle himself when returned to his cell for a brief respite at 7:30 o'clock last night. A lodger, attracted by his groans, notified Lieutenant Costello, who with Patrolman Doell, went to the cell and stripped the prisoner of loose clothing and his belt.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Stocks again backed under night sales today and prices generally looked toward higher levels.

Trading activity in equities expanded considerably under a renewed demand for those equities which are supposed to be held by dollar devaluation, government spending and the recovery of business and industry over a broad front. While gains were moderate in some cases, and profit taking was evident in several

Bremer Still Held By Kidnap Gang

St. Paul, Jan. 24 (AP)—Edward G. Bremer, millionaire St. Paul banker, another victim of the kidnaping racket, was still a prisoner of an unidentified gang that held him captive today at an unlocated hideout.

It was the second day of his captivity through the work of criminals, rumors that the 57-year-old son of Adolph Bremer, had been slain and found dead, and that he had been freed, unharmed, after payment of $200,000 ransom.

One report said the banker would be freed soon. Another report was that the elder Bremer had received a second note from the gang conveying to him instructions for paying the ransom.

Yet the principal owner of the Jacob Schmidt Brewing Company and a personal friend of President Roosevelt, insisted no further contact with the mob had been had since Walter Magee had found a note on his office doorstep shortly after the 37-year-old president and owner of the Commercial State Bank was seized last Wednesday.

Magee, wealthy contractor, added his denial to that of Adolph Bremer.

Strange Suicide Pact Ends 2 Lives

Seated side by side, victims of a strange suicide pact, the bodies of a middle-aged Newburgh matron—mother of four grown children—and an elderly Vails Gate widower were found Monday evening in a Buick coupe in a garage behind the latter's home. The couple had died of monoxide poisoning.

The pair who kept the unusual tryst with death were Mrs. Margaret Rain, 43, of 28 Henry avenue, Newburgh, and William Holley, 54, former Newburgh blacksmith and resident of Vails Gate since last November.

The double suicide was discovered at about 8:45 p. m. by Henry Marquis, who occupies the other half of a double house in which Holley resided at the corner of Windsor and Temple Hill roads.

Suspicious because he had not seen Holley all day and because the windows of the latter's home had remained shaded for 24 hours, Marquis broke into the garage, which was locked from the inside, and made his gruesome discovery.

Holley was slumped behind the wheel, while Mrs. Rain, a blanket drawn up over her breast, sat dead at his side.

THE ONE-WAY TICKET

By COSMO HAMILTON

HE KISSED the photograph of the girl he was to have married, waved a graceful farewell to his comfortable surroundings, grasped his revolver firmly and put the barrel to his head.

In the brief pause that followed his funeral song was rendered by a trolley in the street. A line that he had been sentenced to write three thousand times at school, and had never thought about since, came back into his mind. "Life hath more awe than death." And having looked at it with a startling clearness of one who was on the verge of taking it at the age of twenty-six he said aloud, "My friend, a last look round."

He put the gun among his pipes and walked across to his desk. Even in that fantastic dressing-gown and rather grotesque pyjamas he managed to retain the wiry, muscular appearance that goes with playing golf. In spite of his open-work shoes, too, which were all the go at Newport, his clean-cut face with an amusing nose bore the stamp of his efforts to reduce his handicap. For the rest his color was chocolate, which proved that he had possessed of leisure and the money to pay for it. Or friends who put him up. He was a very popular man.

The letters to his lawyers and his recent fiancée he then proceeded to seal. They looked more formal like that. Glancing at the clock with more than a touch of impatience, he strained his ears toward the door, heard approaching footsteps, returned to his favorite chair and put the gun to his brain. Yes, he had a brain.

Ten minutes before he had opened the door of his apartment. He didn't desire to be disturbed by a ringing bell while in the act of departing on the only journey for which it is impossible to obtain a ticket to return. He held his position until Alan McCrombie, his wealthy friend, entered the sitting-room with a sort of reluctant haste. Whereupon Gilbert put his revolver where it simply had to be seen. He was annoyed in being caught in what, after all, is a very private act. He said, toiling down his anger in what under the circumstances was a surprisingly friendly voice, "What's the great idea?"

McCrombie had seen the revolver. He refused, however, to believe the evidence of his eyes. He had danced all night in a jazz haunt and considered that he had the right to see non-existent things—floating yellow spots, sudden smudges of cloud, curious little dark things which moved about rapidly looking for holes in the wall. All previous calls by Gilbert had resolved themselves into immediate "touches" for cash. He was fully persuaded that he had now been brought to the presence of this graceful and charming sportsman for that purpose once again. But when he approached the table he was bound to believe that what he had seen was a gun in very truth. Horror thickened his voice. "Were you... Is it possible that you... Of all men, you..."

"I don't suppose you know," said Gilbert, "who who have so much money, how difficult it is in these days of unjustified panic to screw oneself up to a moment of such high courage as this. As you have broken in upon me one minute too soon I'll confess quite frankly that I was about to remove myself. I hoped that you would arrive to find not too messy a sight. Hence this dressing-gown bought—or rather owed for—especially for the event."

McCrombie had a tender heart and a sympathetic soul. It has been said that he had already lent Gilbert various lumps of cash. One way or another they totted up to about five thousand dollars. In return he had received, of course, the usual O. U. S. but, although he was proud of being seen in public with a sportsman so well known, he had been through moments of severe pain at the too long withdrawal of this useful sum from his four-and-a-half per cent. It was true that Gilbert was heir to real money but this was still being enjoyed by his last remaining aunt. This dear old lady was not only a vegetarian who took regular exercise but she was also a vibrationist who permitted herself to tune into only those thoughts which are philosophical and sweet. In her seventy-seventh year it went almost without saying that she would reach at least ninety with the greatest ease.

McCrombie had made up his mind not to be "touched" again. But, good heavens, imagine being followed through life with the ghastly weight on his conscience of having sent this man into the Unknown Pathway for the sake of five hundred bucks. He felt that this was the sum. And so he said, with great emotion, "How much will you take to live?"

Much to his astonishment Gilbert was amazed. Indeed he was greatly distressed. "Is it conceivable," he said, "that you're run away with the hideous belief that I arranged to be caught like this for the purpose of frightening, bullying or blackmailing you into handing me a bit?"

"The point is," said McCrombie, "just how much do you want?" He took out his little check-book and scratched his self-dignity pen. He was a man who attached a row of such things to the pocket of his waistcoat. They looked like organ pipes.

"Generous as ever," said Gilbert, "make it five hundred, old dear."

McCrombie made it five hundred with a slightly shaky pen.

Gilbert held out a very grateful hand. But he first of all took the

Great Powers Give Cuba Recognition

Havana, Jan. 24 (AP)—Cuba rejoined her place among the recognized governments of the world today and her new leader, President Carlos Mendivea, set out to solve her affairs at home.

Other great powers followed the United States, which granted recognition to Mendivea yesterday, in extending their recognition immediately.

Those which granted recognition were Mexico, Colombia, Uruguay, Chile, the Dominican Republic, the United States, China, Italy, Bolivia, Costa Rica, Peru, Great Britain, France and Spain.

Grant Wilson, the British minister to Cuba, conveyed recognition to the Cuban government on behalf of the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

check. "Replied," he said with joy, "just at the moment, so to speak, when the ax was about to fall. 'Life, what art thou to such as I? Only an empty dream, only the heart to die.' He was immensely moved. 'And now, my dear old Alan, one other kind action, quick. June is on the stairs. A punctual person, June. Good blood. Tradition. How marvellously they tell! Hold her up just long enough to tell her in your tersest words how you caught me on the verge of this pathetic act, and prepare her to find me making a new beginning, a better and wiser man. In an excess of joy she will cancel my last night's letter in which I broke things off. I thought I'd get in first. She was a trifle hipped with me.'"

McCrombie understood. Not only had he a very kind heart but he was engaged to be married himself. He was out of the room like a shot. A shot! Thank heaven he'd prevented that.

And the man who had been born a hero with a magnificent forearm darted into his bedroom, ran a comb through his hair, changed his bedroom slippers and resumed his seat near the little table on which his revolver gleamed. He heard the resonant rumble of McCrombie's Boston voice and the high, bright exclamations of the lovely June—quite one of the most lovely Junes that had been known for years.

"Gilbert, you fool," she cried, and threw herself into his arms. "You were going to make a nasty mess simply because of my icy mist yesterday afternoon? Gee, but this is love!" Gilbert held her tight. "It is love," he said, "even in these days of snippancy and jazz. But there are things a man can't stand. A girl can go too far. It's amazing how the female forgets that the beautiful male is sensitive and idealistic, so terribly easily wounded by modern flippancy. If you hadn't kept your appointment..."

She didn't allow him to finish. She seized up his lips as though he were going to be sent by mail. Not content with which she jabbed the marks of her lipstick all over his pale face. He might have been a piece of jewelry duly registered.

"Put that gun away," she said, renovating her mouth. "Climb into a suit, bring hundreds of cigarettes and I'll drive you out to Greenwich for eighteen holes before lunch. Oh, yes! And cash a little check."

Gilbert managed to smile as he followed her to the door. "Thanks, thanks, and again thanks," he said. He was a very well-read man. "I'll be with you right away, with cigarettes, high spirits and a nice bulging waist." He kissed her under the chin and waved to her repeatedly as she made small work of the stairs. He lived in one of those old brown houses in which you have to walk up. It was a stone's throw from Madison avenue along which the trolley sang. The check was in his pocket and he would stop at the bank. It might be well to cash it before McCrombie altered his mind. You never know your luck.

Pitching off his dressing-gown he went to his dear old friend. He said, "Thanks so much, old dear. Let's dine together tonight. We must see a good deal more of each other—David and Jonathan, eh?"

McCrombie, vastly flattered, put up a little struggle as he was pushed toward the door. "I absolutely refuse to leave you," he said, still shaken, "until you've emptied the cartridges out of that rotten gun."

"Oh, I'll do that," said Gilbert. "Naturally, of course. So long, my best of friends. A hundred million thanks. Loyalty and generosity are still to be found in this world. How excellent that is. Make it eight o'clock."

But there was no need to empty the chamber of his gun. He had been out of cartridges.

Sobbing Little Boy Was Working Chicago Racket

As a North side woman entered her apartment building the other afternoon she found a tiny boy sobbing his heart out. When she questioned him, he said his name was Willie Myers. He had gone to school and when he got home his father and mother had moved. His misery moved her so that she took him upstairs, bathed him, gave him his supper and put him to bed. The next morning when he was still sleeping at 11 hours, she telephoned her friends who had children and got together a wardrobe to replace his shabby clothes. Later she took him to the nearest police station to try to find his family.

There she found that little Willie had worked the racket several times before, and had rolled up quite a nice little stake for himself. —Chicago News.

Funeral services for George Halstein were held Tuesday afternoon at his late home, No. 148 Smith avenue at 2 o'clock. The home was filled with his relatives and friends especially by a large number of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, No. 235, to which the deceased belonged for many years. Under the direction of George Fisher the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers conducted their burial service for a departed member. The Rev. A. A. Packard, pastor of the Holy Cross Church, was in charge of the services at the home and also at the cemetery. Herman LaTour, assisted by Walter Kidd at the piano, sang during the services "The Old Rugged Cross" and at the conclusion sang "Face to Face." Many beautiful floral pieces were sent to the home during the bereavement, by sorrowing relatives, loyal friends and by the different railroad organizations. The bearers were George Fisher, Herman Young, Edward Hoffman, Martin Cashin, Ira Jones and Thomas Roach, all members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and friends of Mr. Halstein for a great many years. The interment was made in the family plot in Montrose cemetery, where the Rev. Father Packard held the committal service as the body was lowered to its final resting place.

Gigantic Quake In India Kills 25,000

Calcutta, Jan. 24 (AP)—An appalling toll beyond any previously hinted may be reached in India's earthquake dead. It was indicated today when the Rajah of Monghyr said deaths in Monghyr alone have reached 25,000.

It will be weeks, he added, before ruins can be removed to reveal bodies buried by the earthquakes last week which shook the region during the important Moslem festival of Edul Fitr. The rajah predicted two generations will pass before the devastated areas can be rehabilitated.

(The district of Monghyr is in northeastern India in the Bhagalpur division of Bihar and Orissa. It has an area of 3,277 square miles and is divided by the Ganges.)

An unnamed engineer was quoted today as having declared after a survey that the names of both Monghyr and Muzaffarpur might as well be erased from the map.

Dolan Assault Case Adjourned for Week

The hearing in the Leo Dolan assault action, which was scheduled to be held this evening at the town hall in Hurley, before Justice of the Peace Roger H. Loughran, has been adjourned for one week. The hearing will be held next Wednesday at the same time and place.

The matter grows out of an affair at the Hurley Hotel early this year when Deputy Sheriff Fred Greene claims he went to the hotel where a fair he alleges he was attacked and in the scarp his gun was fired and Dolan was shot. Both Dolan and Greene were confined to the hospital for several days and being released both were charged with assault. Greene waived examination and is awaiting action of the grand jury. Dolan demanded a hearing and this was scheduled for this evening but has been adjourned for a week.

La Guardia III of Grip.

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—A chance visit by a physician, slipped what might have been a serious illness for Mayor F. H. La Guardia. Dr. S. S. Goldwater, commissioner of hospitals, visiting the mayor yesterday noticed he looked ill, and found he had a slight fever. The mayor left city hall shortly afterward and spent the rest of the day in bed with a mild case of grip.

Give Official Vote In New Orleans Election

New Orleans, Jan. 24 (AP)—The Orleans Parish Democratic Central committee today announced the official vote from yesterday's city primary in 12 of the 262 precincts as follows:

Mayor T. S. Wainwright 31,219.
John Klorer 20,893.
Francis Williams 18,131.
Herbert Holmes 248.
It appeared that Mayor Wainwright had carried his entire ticket with his plurality though he did not appear to have a clear majority. Political observers freely predicted that there would be a second primary. Indications were that the mayor would lead with a plurality of approximately 15,000 votes in complete returns were in.

Another Gangster Is Erased in Chicago

Windy City Loses Another Public Enemy in Slaying of William "Three Fingers" White—Killers Escaped in Auto

Chicago, Jan. 24.—The slaying of William "Three Fingers" White, 34, a well-known Chicago gangster and labor racketeer, was reported today after a chase in a city-owned car through the city's urban Oak Park neighborhood.

His body, partially unburied, was found last night after reports of the building being a scene of rapid shots and saw two men flee from the building and jump into a waiting automobile and drive away.

That the gangster had put up a desperate struggle was evidenced by the overturned furniture in the well-furnished living room in which his bullet-riddled body was found.

Two glass bookcase doors were smashed and from beneath and glasses found on the premises it was evident that White and his visitors had engaged in a drinking bout before he was slain.

Two women, one of whom identified herself to police as White's wife, and a man were taken into custody when they drove up to the apartment in an automobile. All denied knowing anything of the killing.

Mrs. White solved the mystery of "H. J. Cerny" under whose name the apartment was leased when she told the police that it was the name under which White had gone. She gave her own name as Nancy, 22, and said that until her marriage to White last fall she had been a cabaret entertainer.

The others gave their names as Miss Dinah Anderson, 29, of Sterling, Ill., who said she had been visiting the Whites, and James Kelley, 28, a brother of the widow. Kelley said he was an unemployed stage dancer and comedian and had been living with his sister and her husband recently.

White's history with the police department goes back to 1919, when he was sentenced to the Joliet prison and served a four-year term as a robber, and continued on through the regimes of the city's notorious underworld rulers.

LIVE BUSINESS MEN ADVERTISE IN THE FREEMAN

Get the Habit of Drinking Hot Water Before Breakfast
Says we can't look or feel right with the system full of poisons.
Thousands of folks bathe internally instead of loading their system with drugs. What's on inside? You say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles if you believe these hot water cures.
There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon rising in the morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and the rest of the intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the system which if not eliminated every day becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, which result in poisons and toxins, which are then absorbed into the blood causing headache, biliousness, fumes, foul breath, bad taste, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.
People who feel good one day and bad the next, but who simply do not feel right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. It will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank the subject of internal sanitation.
Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so limestone phosphate and hot water act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It is vastly more important to the inside than to the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities from the blood, while the internal pores do.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—There'll be no thees, thous, wits or dosts—and no whithers or whences, either—in the dialog of "Cleopatra."
Showman Cecil B. DeMille, who has Claudette Colbert to play the Egyptian siren in his next historical spectacle, insists that modern English will do justice to the spirit of those ancient times.
"The habit of using what is known in literature as middle English in present-day representations of historical dialog," says C. B. "is just as fallacious as using Brooklyn slang in a south sea native story."
"The use of this style dates back to the King James translation of the Bible. But that style was modern, every-day English in the time of King James. Just as the original Hebrew from which it was translated was modern at the time it was written. Neither the original nor the translation sounded stilted to their readers at the time they were conceived."

'Rascal' And Lunch
A new DeMille anecdote concerns the quavering extra girl who was reprimanded by the director for talking when he was trying to give orders in a mob scene.
He called for silence, and snapped out: "Young lady, you'll come to the front of the crowd and tell everybody what you said or you'll be barred from the studio for good."
The girl advanced, faced the director and the mob, and, trembling between the devil and the deep, blurted out: "I said I wonder when the old bald-headed rascal is going to call lunch!"

Spirit Of Garbo
Betty Davis moved into the "old Garbo house"—that is, one of Greta's former residences hereabouts—shortly before Christmas, and she and her husband, Harmon O. Nelson, Jr., newly returned from the east, spent Christmas quietly there instead of taking a trip as planned.
Her friends are wondering if Betty, like Garbo, is going in for seclusion, quiet and meditation.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

There is almost no doubt that the new mascot of the University of California is the young Master Jimmy Fox.

There was a time when the fox felt the keen spirit of the hunt upon the rise of the sun. The fox-hunting team-mate, the General, subsequently the one-season, the Berkeley Hack, who had been for two later the challenge of the fox to the king of the forest, the fox runs.

That rivalry no longer exists. The simple reason that the fox does not play enough complete games to have a real opportunity to defend himself in a home run. He has over a single season, or to reach a new record. He has to depend himself now with the thought that the magical six will stand the time and youthful batteries. Upon reflection he admits he is not quite so sure Master Fox will crack it.

That he certainly can give the ball a ride. Jimmy Fox, "So far, so good," says the fox. "I'm a fox-hold and clutch it. He has a great pair of shoulders and a good eye. When he really connects, no fence or stand in the country is any barrier to him. He is not handicapped by reason of being a right-handed batter. Sure, he has a chance to lose my record."

Jimmy's Goal 65

Fox himself thinks he may collect as many as 65 circuit blows during 1934, considering first that he hopes to be in better condition at the outset and, secondly, that the targets in Chicago and Cleveland will be much more to his liking than they were last year.

The White Sox diamond has been altered to lessen the distance between the plate and the outer barriers. The Indians will play in the old league park at Cleveland again. Instead of in the mammoth Municipal Stadium, where it is almost a full brassie shot to clear any of the outfield fences.

The A's big sticker hit his 58th home run on the last day of the 1932 season, the closest any slugger in either big league has come to touching Ruth's record. He led both leagues again with 48 last season but he was handicapped by a poor start, due to injury. For instance, he had 24 home runs by the middle of June, 1932, whereas it was the middle of July before he reached that total in 1933.

The fact is that Fox hit more homers during the last two months of last season than he did during a similar period the year before, so that he has good reason for feeling, granted good condition, he has not lost his touch.

Habe Likes The A's

Ruth thinks the Athletics will be very much in the 1934 American League race, despite the loss of Grove and Cochrane.

"They have a strong, young team and that old man, Mack, has a habit of coming up with pretty good pitchers," says the Babe. "Grove, on the other hand, does not figure to make the Red Sox a pennant contender and I can't see where the team has been much strengthened otherwise. It still hasn't got the punch."

The great man thinks Washington, Philadelphia and New York will again be the leading contenders, with possibly Detroit furnishing the most opposition from the west. He doesn't expect to find any push-over unless it's the St. Louis club, and something may be done about that situation before the season opens.

Games Scheduled At Comforter Hall

The three regular Wednesday games are scheduled for tonight at Comforter Church Hall as follows:

Comforter Aces vs. another Junior team at 7 o'clock.

Varsity Girls vs. Fullers at 8 o'clock.

Comforter Seniors vs. Ellenville Zodiaks at 9 o'clock.

Although it is expected the main attraction, named last, will present plenty of action, the girls' contest is looked to as one which will vie with it for the spotlight. The Varsity is undefeated at home and the Fullers, one of the best quintets hereabouts, plans on breaking the good record of the church girls.

The first preliminary, featuring the Comforter Aces, will see this club trying to extend its wins to eight, its record now being seven victories and four defeats.

Saturday night the regular program of games will go on at Comforter, one on the slate being the contest between the Varsity and Holy Cross Girls.

MISS JANE NICHOLSON

NEW YORK

Barney Ross, 2-1, To Beat Petrolle

New York, Jan. 24 (AP).—Barney Ross, speedy champion of the lightweight, risks prestige but no title in a ten round bout with Billy Petrolle, battle-scarred scourge of the lightweight and welterweight divisions, at the Coliseum tonight.

Stirred from their lethargy by prospects of a knock-down, drag-out battle between two first-class fighting men, boxing fans rushed for the ticket windows. A virtual sell-out—12,000 seats—was in sight.

Ross' position as a 2 to 1 favorite was due in part at least to the fact that the youngster outpointed Petrolle in Chicago last March, but New York ringsters have seen lethal-fisted Billy dispose of too many ring greats or near-greats to understand how any rival can be held at such odds against him.

The bout is scheduled for about 10 p. m. (E. S. T.).

WRESTLING LAST NIGHT

Friends of the players may attend, a very nominal admission charge being made. Following the last game, dancing will be enjoyed.

WOMEN SHARPSHOOTERS PREPARE FOR TOURNEY

Miami, Fla., Jan. 24 (Special).—Stellar fields of amateur sharpshooters of both sexes are busily raking Florida fairways these days in annual quest of golf crowns of the slalom-pure variety.

In the feminine camp, all preparations are being pointed toward victory in the first major women's tournament of the season, the Miami Biltmore Women's Invitation, which will hold the spotlight February 5-9.

Miss Helen Hicks of Hewlett, L. I., the 1931 national champion, is heading the women's battalion, with two formidable challengers, Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City, Mo., and Miss Maureen Orent of White Beaches, N. J., also in the vanguard. Mrs. Hill, monarch of the midwest, is the defending Miami Biltmore champion, and seeks the second leg on the Grace Doherty challenge cup.

One of the first developments is expected to be the creation of a new course record to supplant the 84 set by Mrs. Ernest Hogarth of Lorain, O., in the inaugural tournament two years ago. For both Miss Hicks and Mrs. Orent consider scores in the 70's their normal Florida gait, and Mrs. Hill, who shared the medal honors last year at 88 with Mrs. Estelle Drennan of Tulsa, Okla., is a doughty campaigner who keys her game to meet the pace.

Polish Quintet Wins Over Battery A at White Eagle Hall 40-17

Led by Dan Joyce, who scored 18 points, the Z. N. P. turned in an overwhelming victory over Battery A of the 156th Field Artillery in the basketball feature at White Eagle Hall, Tuesday night. Final score of the contest was 40-17 in favor of the Polish cagers.

In one of the preliminaries the Comforter Girls outscored the Basch All Stars, 9-6 and in the other the Comforter Missions edged out the Z. N. P. Juniors, 23-22.

Schmeling Signs, Baer Wants $75,000

New York, Jan. 24 (AP).—A return match between Max Schmeling and Max Baer will be held at Los Angeles in April if the California heavyweight can be persuaded to sign a contract negotiated by Los Angeles promoter.

Paying a flying visit to New York, Baer stayed just long enough to sign Schmeling's name to a contract for a 12-round match with Baer at the Olympic Auditorium in Los Angeles, then left for Baltimore to confer with Baer and his manager, Anell Hoffman.

Hoffman said at Baltimore he would agree to the match provided Baer was willing to guarantee $75,000. Baer had said he believed the match would gross $250,000.

Baer vaulted to the top of the heavyweight contender list when he knocked out Schmeling in ten rounds last June.

Schmeling will begin his comeback campaign against Steve Hamas at Philadelphia, February 15.

POULTRY FACTS

HENS CANNOT GET BY ON APPEARANCE

Ancestry and Records Count Most for Breeding

Not much can be told about a hen's ability to lay eggs by her looks. Her ancestry and record count for far more, according to R. E. Gray, extension specialist in poultry husbandry for the Ohio State university.

Recent experiments have shown that neither the shape of the head nor the shape of the body is worth considering in selecting a hen for the breeding flock. But five factors other than appearance are worthy of consideration.

Gray lists these factors as follows: Select for early maturity. This is an inherited characteristic, and is particularly important because fall and winter eggs are the ones that return the profit. Light breeds should begin laying at seven months and the heavy breeds at eight months.

Select hens that lay in the winter. Examine the birds in February, and select for the breeding flock those having the appearance of being in production.

Another characteristic of a good prospect for the breeding flock is persistence in laying during September and October. If the birds pass the September, October and February tests, they have an excellent recommendation for a place in the breeding pen.

Discard all birds that persistently tend to broodiness. Place a hand on the hen's leg each time she becomes broody. Three hands and she's out. Winter pause period in egg-laying should be of short duration.

Skim Milk or Meat Will Supply Excellent Feed

In order that a poultryman may get every cent of profit coming to him he must avail himself of all the means at his disposal to produce cheaply, asserts a poultry authority in the Montreal Herald. When whole milk is sold anywhere from sixty cents to a dollar a hundred pounds, skim milk has little value; yet, if it is fed to poultry, it will bring fair returns. If skim milk were used instead of beef scraps as a source of animal feed, poultrymen would cut down on their feed bill and their cost of egg production at the same time.

An experiment conducted at the Dominion Experimental station, Cap Rouge, Que., for five seasons proved rather conclusively that the lot of birds receiving skim milk laid more eggs and gained more weight than the one which was fed beef scrap, other feeds being the same. Skim milk should always be fed sweet or always sour so as to avoid bowel troubles. Where skim milk is not available beef scrap will have to be resorted to.

Use of Cod Liver Oil

When the hens do not have access to sunlight, the inclusion of good cod liver oil in the ration materially increases egg production. In one test at the Missouri station, a lot of Anconas kept behind glass, when fed cod liver oil produced an average of 89 eggs each during the six winter months, while a similar lot kept under the same conditions, but fed no cod liver oil, produced only 61 eggs each. In Brown Leghorns, the cod liver oil fed group averaged 93 eggs each, while the lot which received no cod liver oil averaged 62 eggs. With White Leghorns, the difference was not so great.

Poultry Notes

Bantams are not the useless birds they were once considered to be. Game breeders now quite generally use Bantam hens in hatching and rearing game birds.

The poultry flock is inherently capable of producing eggs during the winter season, but it does require proper environmental conditions to bring out that inherent tendency. The farmer must do his share.

The 1933 fall turkey crop of Tom Green county, Texas, was estimated at 36 cars, worth more than $125,000.

If pullets are guilty of feather-picking, take stock of the number you have housed together. Overcrowding is one cause of feather picking.

Pullets should receive all the milk they will drink. Sour milk is as good as sweet milk. The milk containers should be washed daily and scalded at least once a week.

There are three chickens on farms for each person in the United States.

On most commercial duck farms, one drake is used to five ducks, and it is assumed that it will be possible to produce 50 ducklings from each duck during each hatching season.

The absence of vitamins in poultry feed causes leg weakness, slow development and growth, while cod liver oil, white fish meal and likewise meat and bone meal supply the deficiency.

Early Fowlies Cookers

It is impossible to say exactly where the principle of the fowlies cooker originated. It was known to the Jews many centuries ago, who used bags of feathers for insulation. Sweden is reported to be the home of the hay box, which was the immediate predecessor of the modern fowlies cooker.

OFFICE CAT

Be friendly—it brings happiness

The newest form of favoritism now in vogue in Hollywood—Admit Bearer and One Wife.

The minister called on Mrs. M. J. Murphy.

Minister—By the way, Mrs. Murphy, I was sorry to see your husband leave the church last Sunday in the middle of my sermon. There was nothing serious the matter with him?

Mrs. Murphy—Oh, no sir. It was nothing very serious, but you see the poor man does have a habit of walking in his sleep.

There's no use experimenting with new cures for love when matrimony has so long proved a certain sure one.

John—What do you mean, when you say I'm desirous? Mary—I've just asked you to get a $2,000 allowance on your income tax return for being married and you only give me a miserable $10 a week.

Wife—I wish you were like a Junebride. He's so in love with his wife he always carries her picture in his pocket.

Her Husband—But, my dear, haven't a pocket large enough for a phonograph record.

Chips from the Editor's pen: Take away some folks' "front" and watch them slide back. Your own best bet is yourself. "Get along" doesn't necessarily imply going ahead. Personality alone cannot elevate you for a time, but doesn't depend on it to keep you up.

Student—Boy, did I sculpture an exam!

Friend—What do you mean? Sculpture an exam?

Student—I made a bust of it.

There are two kinds of wives. One that makes a failure of a man, and one that makes a man of a failure.

Two men were making their trip to America. On the first night out the liner pitched like a chip on the big waves. One of the travelers going to his stateroom to rest found his friend just getting in bed and was astonished to note that he wore a woman's frilly nightgown and had a lace ribbon trimm boudoir cap on his head.

First Traveler—For heaven's sake, man, what's the big idea?

His Friend—Well, don't you know the rule: In case of disaster, women and children first?

A good thing to remember. And a better thing to do. "Work with the construction crew" and not with the wrecking crew.

Jerry—Goodness, Jasper, this is not our baby! This is the wrong carriage.

Jasper—Shut up! This is a better carriage.

There are more people interested in how to manage husbands' wives than how to manage husbands. Which is quite all right. Husbands (or wives) are more important.

Those "superchargers" on new cars may be O. K., but what's supercharging that put this car where it's been these last few years?

Another possibility for the American farmer. He can migrate South Africa and start diamond farming.

Mrs. Reed (with newspaper)—says here that a woman in Europe has just cremated her third husband. Miss Willing—Isn't that just a luck? Some of us can't get our hands and other women have to do to burn.

Client—I know the evidence is very strongly against my innocence, but I have $50,000 to fight the case with.

Lawyer—As your attorney, I assure you that you'll never go to prison with that amount of money. —And he didn't, he went to the broke.

Man is that lordly creature who has discovered how easy it is to be in luxury by running his descendants into debt.

Few of us do as we would advise others.

Stamp Exhibition Stamps.
For the second time, the United States government is to issue a series of unguessed stamps without perforations in connection with a stamp show. When the National Stamp exhibition is held in New York, February 16 to 18, sheets of six Byrd blue three-cent stamps will be printed at the show on presses brought up from Washington for the purpose.

The previous unguessed imperforate issue was put out at the stamp show held in Chicago in connection with the Century of Progress exhibition. The stamps were the one and three-centers of the Century of Progress issue.

Egyptian Commemorates.
In commemoration of the international aviation congress in Cairo, Egypt, late in 1933, a group of five stamps was printed by that country on the one, two, five and 10 milligramme.

are pictured two modern types of cabin planes, while on the 20 milligramme is the Graf Zeppelin.

It consists of a crane hovering over the double bridge marking the entrance to the Imperial palace in Tokyo, with the inscription "In commemoration of the celebration of the birth of his imperial highness the crown prince—Tokyo, December 19, 1933."

Various scenes, showing the people, the animals and the activities of the Italian colony of Eritrea are depicted in a new set of ten cent stamps from that division of the world.

Lost in Snow
My MARY GRAMER BONNER

"I've come to see you about something," began Grandpa Grouchy Galsp, the cross little man who lived with his almost-as-cross little wife in a small, noisy not far from Puddle Middle.

The Puddle Middleers were afraid of him. Willy Nilly knew, and yet there was something about Grandpa that made them want to tease him.

"What is it?" asked Willy Nilly nervously.

"Will you call for your Crow?" asked Grandpa.

So that was it. Willy Nilly thought to himself. Christopher had been playing some prank again.

"Why do you want him?" Willy Nilly asked, trying to hide his trembling as he spoke.

"Well," began Grandpa Grouchy Galsp, "just before the big blizzard I was out in my garden, and I dropped a ring of my little finger. It's a beautiful gold ring and I'm very fond of it."

Oh, how Willy Nilly did wish Christopher would not do such things. He was surprised Grandpa was not angrier. Usually he was in a very bad temper.

"I meant to go right back and look for it as I missed it so soon I was sure just about where it was lost. But then came the blizzard and I did not go out of doors. I can't be without it and it's lost in the snow."

"I thought maybe your Crow with his keen eyesight would find it for me. I'll give him a nice reward."

Willy Nilly breathed a long, long sigh of relief. Grandpa's ring had not been taken by Christopher. He wanted the Crow's help instead!
